The A 2 motorway, also known as the South Motorway, is included in both the Portuguese National Road Network and in the Itinerários Principais (Main Itinerary Road) Network that serve all districts of the country.

It is the only Portuguese motorway establishing a direct connection between the capital city of Lisbon and the Algarve region, at the south of the country, crossing the entire Alentejo region. It has therefore become an important structuring road, lessening the consequences of the inadequate access roads to the rest of the country.

The Castro Verde–Almodôvar subsection of the A 2 motorway, with a length of approximately 21 km, is part of the last two concluded sections of the A 2, namely those between Castro Verde and the Via Longitudinal do Algarve (Algarve Longitudinal Road). The conclusion of these sections allowed users travelling from the north and central regions of Portugal to the far south of the country, and vice-versa, to experience a faster, more comfortable and safer trip, especially during the summer.

A1V2 participated in this project in the specialties of drainage, traffic signs and road safety equipment.
